Most people thinks it's about the poor talent of the author (Urban Kassedda). This statue 3 feet high statue has changed owner about 50 times since 4981 AD (the death of Kassedda).

An ancient but very well preserved Van Gelder cutlass, a sort of partly curved rapier. The sigil on the base of the blade, approximately 1cm diameter is a true mark from master swordsmith Piotr Kenan. This is the original. This weapon was used by the infamous Gerald Van Gelder five centuries ago, and it used it to kill more than 665 decados nobles with it, so the legend tells. During his last battle, he decided to show mercy to his last prey that killed in the back. Radik Decados kept the blade, but committed suicide with that same blade a few weeks later.

The sword is cursed. The new owner of this blade will be the subject of strange dreams about sword fighting, hearing a voice in the background apparently reading rules of fencing (the voice is Gerald's). After each dream, check TEM+Stoic Mind vs DV 20. If failed, a random SPIRIT attribute point is lost. If passed, a melee point is earned and a fencing technique is discovered. There can be up to 10 dreams.
